DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: the mat 20, 40 is listed as 34 on page 4, line 18. Also, a second heating foil 48 (page 4, line 28) should be called "a second transfer foil".

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 7-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Park (2004/0195227).

Park discloses an electrical heating cushion 40 that is inherently usable also as a heated pet mat, comprising an inherently sealed covering - two protecting layers 50 and 60 made of PVC (Page 2, [0039] [0041]), the covering is inherently fire retardant since applicant uses the same material, and resistive heating element 20 sandwiched between the two layers. Further, Park discloses that the cushion has a shape of a truncated circle or semicircle (Fig. 2 and 4).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1- 6 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Park (2004/0195227).

Park discloses substantially the claimed invention. However, Park is silent about how the two layers 50 and 60 are placed together. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to modify Park's invention to make the cushion folded in half to form two layers sealed together in order to enhance the process of making the cushion and reduce cost.

As for claim 6, it would be obvious to make a width of the truncated circle 10% shorter than a radius as a matter of design choice in order to obtain result wanted by user.

As for claims 3 and 9, it would be obvious to modify Park's invention to include the covering made of styrene plastic as an obvious functional equivalent.

6. Claims 10-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Park in view of Graflind (4,788,417) and further in view of McCann (2,612,585).

Park discloses substantially the claimed invention including the flat-foil heating element 20, but does not disclose two foils and that the heating element includes a heating wire.

Graflind discloses a heating pad having several heating foils 11-18 and McCann discloses a radiant heating pad having a heating element comprising a foil 17 and a heating wire 14. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to modify the invention of Park to include a second heating foil as taught by Graflind and a heating wire in the heating element as taught by McCann in order to make the heating structure of the pad-mat more durable.
